Ground Rules

These define what group members expect from one another and what norms they agree on relating to behaviours and actions. Below are examples of the types of areas it is important to address and examples of what form they might take.

Area	Principles & Norms
Communication	All members of the group agree to: Respond to messages within 24 hours unless otherwise specified. Keep communication clear, concise, and respectful. Notify the team in advance if they will be unavailable for an extended period.
Meetings	Attend all scheduled meetings unless an absence is communicated in advance. Be punctual and prepared with relevant updates or questions.
Deadlines	Complete assigned tasks on time and communicate any potential delays as early as possible. Review and provide feedback on each other's work in a timely manner.

Care Statement Outline here how the team will strive to care for the health of each other and the team as a whole during the project duration:

Encouraging a supportive and respectful environment. Checking in on each other's workload and stress levels regularly. Being flexible and understanding when unexpected situations arise. Promoting a balanced approach to work to prevent burnout.

Performance Agreement Considers how the group will address non-performance of what is agreed to. Whatever the group agrees upon should correspond to the impact or gravity of the issues at hand.

They must explain the issue and propose a solution, with the team offering support if needed. The team discusses the issue and may reassign tasks. If necessary, it may be escalated to a supervisor. If non-performance continues without valid reasons, responsibilities may be redistributed, and intervention may be requested.

Signatures to the Agreement

If team members cannot add signatures in-person, a group can agree that each member typing their name in the signature section suffices as agreement
